DEUT. 5:12- Keep the Sabbath day

to sanctify it, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee. The Sabbath beyond question is of divine and very ancient origin, and after the gnawing tooth of time shall have crumbled the many places of note to dust, the Sabbath shall be. Eden was blessed with the Sabbath and with the marriage relation. The man who strikes either strikes at much that is holiest in the sentiment of the best men and women, and at much that is dearest to God. Palsied the hand that would lift itself against the Sabbath of God. God gave a law by which the people were to be governed. A law is a rule prescribed by a superior, or a principle by which a [thing is regulated, and is based on the principle of right. When Moses had the law read to the people they said, Amen, which meant, we submit to it. And it has been the purpose of God always to maintain a testimony for truth and righteousness in the midst of this ungodly world. In other words, he made an example of many for a warning to all succeeding generations, and has not left us without warning and example. In the days of Moses there was a man found gathering sticks on the Sabbath day, and God had him stoned to death. Num. 15:32, and Jeremiah 17:21 say: "Take heed to yourselves and bear no burden on the Sabbath day." And in Ex. 20:10, that thy son, thy daughter, manservant, maidservant, and thy cattle, and th estranger that is within thy gates are forbidden to work on the Sabbath. Neh. 13:15 says: I testified against them that sold victuals on the Sabbath day; all of which I understand to mean for the sake of the money that is in the business are these things forbidden. I do not find in God's word where he authorized man to revoke his law. Christ said he came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill. Paul said of Christ that he is the end of the law, etc. Mind you, the keeping of the law is not a question of salvation, but of service; or, in other words, we show our respect to God by the way we treat His commandments. The Sabbath was made for man, hence is a blessing to him. And God preceded man in keeping it, for we find that in the beginning he made Heaven and earth in six days and rested on the seventh, leaving an example for man. Man needs rest. It is God's day, and he lifts up his voice and says, Stop and rest. And if man takes God's day he takes that which does not belong to him. Happy is that land and blessed is that home where God is loved and honored by keeping His Sabbath. Kingdoms have risen and fallen, but the Sabbath hath still been kept in memory, and man has had some inclinations to follow his Maker's example, though it has been to many more of a holiday than ca holy day, and often much desecrated. This point I desire to mention more particularly. The Sabbath is a memorial of the resurrection of Christ; hence it should not be a day of gloom, but a day of joy, gladness, praise and thankegiving-a day to feast on God's Book. Was there ever such a book? See how full of wisdom and love! Look at it on bended knee and find Heaven between its pages. God took great care to make it, but man does not take much time to read and search it. In the members of that church, and might be mistaken for one of those reading it our minds are taken away upon them for only six weeks out of disgusting Americans!" from the world and from earthly care. Many observe the Sabbath merely as a custom, and not because God said so; hence it is kept in a loose way. We are wasting much time on the Sabbath day, when there is so much good to be tell us is the limit of the years of done. Souls are aeglected; church Sabhath school not attended, homen's reach four score. And probably we prevent others from attending by visiting them. If at church, they are there on business, and while they sit in the church their minds are far away, making plans for which they are anxious Monday should come to put in practice. The Sabbath is a day especially to feast on God's Word, and not on the news of the day. God said, T-ke six days for business, but many say, No; we want seven. As we take the Sabbath for anything most common and most fatal habits else but to serve and glorify His of the race. There is high scientific name, we greatly desecrate the day. Too many use it for amusements, or recreation, pastime, business, etc., and many make much ado about the iron works and railroad men for break- more persons hasten their death by ing the Sabbath, but other men do the overeating than by overdrinking. same, though in a way not so visible to the public.

It is said that the Philadelphia exposition, which closed on the Sabbath, was a financial success; while the New Orleans exposition, which was open on the Sabbath, was a financial fail-Christ's presence. The soul is happy when spent with the disciples and Jesus. Thomas was absent from church that day, and the shadow of doubt will hang around his name for-is reminded of that eternal rest promised him when the toils of life are ended. The nation will soon forget its God after it has forgotten His Sabbath. When we labor six days in the week we want a good spiritual meal on the Sabbath if we can get it, and we find therein a blessed compensation and refreshment. When Christians night: begin to live up to the gospel mark we may then look for institutions of the world to begin to fall in line also.

And now may the Lord's spirit help us to love, serve and honor Him who said, "I am Lord also of the Sabbath."

Amen and amen!

Temperance !n Eating.

Volumes have been written and millions of words have been spoken against overindulgence, or any indulgence, indeed, in alcoholic beverages; and whatever difference of opinion there may be as to the harmfulness of a temperate use of wine or beer, there is none whatever as to the dangers of intemperance in that direction. But how many persons ever stop to think of the fatal effects of intemperance in eating.

Even insurance companies, which would refuse to insure an habitual drunkard, make no inquiries, as a rule, concerning the applicant's habits about eating; yet as regards the shortening of life, many physiologists assert that overeating is more destructive than overdrinking.

The organs of the body are able to assimilate only a certain amount of nutriment, which is proportioned to a nicety to the daily loss of substance in the different tissues.

If more food is taken than can be utilized, the liver and the kidneys are called upon to get rid of the extra amount. This they are perfectly able to do once in a while, especially in the young and Thanksgiving din- through the century. ner, and even a Christmas dinner a month later, can be disposed of with ease if the organs are not habitually overworked. But if they have to dispose of a Thanksgiving dinner and two other heavy meals every day of the year, they will rebel and finally give up, exhausted, long before the It happened at a little railway station proper time.

No adult leading the average life three "solid" meals a day are, it is safe to say, absolutely hurtful to ninetenths of us.

It is of course impossible to lay down any hard and fast rule, as to the taking of food, which will apply to everybody under all circumstances, but it is pretty safe to advise almost everybody to eat less.

The Roman Catholic church prescribes certain rules as to fasting durthese directions, only one full meal can be eaten in the day-either at noon or in the evening. In the mornis called a "collation," that is to say, a light repast is permissible.

To Watch the Century Out.

Bishop Charles B. Galloway, of Baltimore, has sent out the following official document to the various Meth odist churches in the South, calling on them to make the last night of the year a twentieth century watch

"As president of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, I suggest that on Monday night, the 31st of December, a great Methodist watch night service be held in every church of our vast connection in the interest of the twentieth century fund. The las: of the year and the last of the century ought to be made memorable. Watching a new year come in and a new century dawn, should be a momentous occasion, like the wonderful spiritual feasts of early Methodism. On Sunday before in all the circuits and country places let twentieth century services be held and thank offerings laid upon the altar of the church. In all villages, towns and cities the greatest feast should be on Monday night of watching and consecration. Addresses should be delivered in those previously on the various triumphs and developments of the now dying century, and an appropriate sermon preached and grateful offering made, closing with a prayer of consecration as the clock strikes 12. and then the jubilant singing of Methodism's thrilling night watch hymn:

"'Come let us now our journey pursue,' etc.

"Then, with an exchange of new century greetings, we will go out under the baptism of another Pentecost to achieve greater things in our Lord's wonderful to-morrow.

"Brethren of Southern Methodism, let us make this great watch night another such spiritual scene as was witnessed in that historic love feast in Fetter lane, London, Jan. 1, 1739. If so, the glow and glory will abide

BAD BLOOD,

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, soft skin, free from

The many preparations of arsenic and potash and the large number of face powders and lotions generally used in this class of diseases cover up for a short time, but cannot remove permanently the ugly blotches and the red, disfiguring pimples.
